Forecast For East Midlands
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Sunday 21 Feb 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Rather cloudy with some outbreaks of rain.

Today:
A little breezy this morning but largely dry and cloudy. Outbreaks of rain possible through the morning, but becoming increasingly dry later. Winds will become light, feeling very mild. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Some patchy cloud overnight but generally rather dry in the east. A chance of rain in the west with some hill fog over the Peak District. Winds remaining light throughout. Minimum temperature 4 deg C (39 deg F).

Monday:
Monday will likely be similar to Sunday with some outbreaks of rain at times and partly cloudy skies. Staying on the mild side as winds remain light. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Tuesday to Thursday:
Remaining dry but becoming windy on Tuesday with largely cloudy skies. A risk of rain on Wednesday, but becoming dry by Thursday but with a risk of showers. Remaining mild.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.